

Panel 9: Globalization and Migration: Incentives and Inhibitions vis-à-vis South Asia

Conveners: Professor Arvind Agrawal, Chairperson, Department of Sociology, University of Rajasthan

Dr. Musarrat Jabeen, Chairperson, Associate Professor, International Relations, University of Balochistan

Abstract: Contributions to the conference are invited to facilitate conversations about the role of migration as response to globalization vis-à-vis South Asia. Papers are invited from research in social, political, economic, strategic and eco (environmental) migration trends and practices. Due to the fact of aging population in developed countries, migration from developing countries particularly from South Asia to the North is imminent. At the same time, neither existing citizen laws of the northern countries nor UNO and WTO regulations are sound enough to protect the migrants efficiently.

The panel intends to go into various fields of research, including human rights, law, decision making, emergency planning, sustainability, business governance, town planning and adjustment problems, military conflict, and cyber-crimes.
